

"A More Convenient Season"

A good many persons, when the subject of saving is brought up, say that they believe in the wisdom of saving money, in general, but as far as they are concerned, they will have to wait awhile before starting to save.

"I will begin to save some time when my income is greater, or when my expenses are less," they say. But there's

St. Louis Beef Probe.

St. Louis, Mo., March 31.—Arrangements were completed today for the St. Louis beef probe, which will be in charge of Attorney General Major. The inquiry into the alleged combine of packers will begin within a few days.

"From the evidence already secured at the Jefferson City hearing, together with the additional evidence that has been secured by Special Attorney Campbell Cummings of St. Louis, I am sure there is a combination in restraint of trade," said the Missouri Attorney General.

"That there is a combination is apparent from the Jefferson City evidence. Additional information has been secured on which the St. Louis hearing is prepared it will make a formidable showing."

Pennsylvania Graft Trial.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 31.—Joseph M. Huston, the architect who is now charged with complicity in the Pennsylvania State Capitol graft, will be placed on trial today. The case was originally set for trial last January, but a child of one of the jurors became ill with scarlet fever, and it was feared he would spread the contagion.

In many important respects the case in which Huston is to be tried is identical with that in which ex-Auditor General Snyder and ex-Superintendent Shumaker were convicted.

The Commonwealth's case against Huston is believed to have been greatly strengthened by the action of the Supreme Court in upholding the rulings of Judge Kunkel, of the Dauphin County Court, in these cases, on various points, especially the admission of evidence relating to transactions other than those immediately involved in the indictment. The defense laid great stress on its exceptions to such evidence which the Commonwealth regarded as important in establishing the conspiracy.
